

Keeli Sorensen is the Director of Government Relations and Public Policy. Ms. Sorensen previously served as Polaris's Director of National Programs, providing guidance and support to Polaris's U.S. program directors as well as developing strategic partnerships ensuring that the organization engaged thoughtfully in movement-wide efforts.

With more than ten years of experience assisting exploited and trafficked populations, Ms. Sorensen leads Polaris's federal policy engagement efforts. She is responsible for developing partnerships with national coalitions and setting the agencies policy agenda to ensure that the laws and practices of the United States government effectively combats human trafficking and provides effective redress to victims of the crime.