

Natalia Aguirre is currently the Director of the Technical Assistance and Training. As part of the leadership staff Natalia works on several initiatives, but focuses on the Alliance's Creating Pathways to Hope and Healing Polyvictimization Initiative funded by the Office for Victims of Crime. Her previous work in developing and planning for Family Justice Centers in the United States and Mexico have given her a unique experience and understanding of the impact of Family Justice Centers and similar multi-agencies have on the lives of survivors and their children.

Alliance for HOPE International has received national and international recognition for its innovative and systems changing work around its five core programs: Family Justice Centers, Training Institute on Strangulation Prevention, Camp Hope America, Justice Legal Network and its Voices Survivor Advocacy Network program. With 137 identified Centers around the United States, Alliance for HOPE is beginning to redefine and shift how communities and professionals prevent, intervene and collaborate around the issue of interpersonal violence through evidence based practices like Family Justice Centers.
